

Technology Resources for Families

This rapid move to online education has been very challenging for everyone involved, especially families.

The Wisconsin Department of instruction provides excellent resources for families to use to learn about Internet safety and digital citizenship including a class that is designed to be taken as a family.

<https://dpi.wi.gov/internet-safety/parents>

A screenshot of a web page titled "Parents/Guardians" under the "Internet and Online Safety" section. The page has a breadcrumb trail: "INTERNET AND ONLINE SAFETY / PARENTS/GUARDIANS". The main heading "Parents/Guardians" is in a large, light blue font. On the left, there is a sidebar with a "Parents/Guardians" button.

Google also provides very good resources to help families navigate online experiences, including safety and boundary-setting advice: <https://safety.google/families/>

A screenshot of the Google Safety Center website. The main navigation bar includes "Overview", "Your security", "Your privacy", "For families" (which is highlighted with a blue underline), and "Engineering Innovation". Below this, there are sub-navigation options: "Parental supervision", "Family-friendly experiences", and "Tips for families".

Common Sense Media has many resources on a variety of topics for families:

<https://www.commonsensemedia.org/parent-concerns>

A row of four navigation tabs: "For Parents" (highlighted with a green underline), "For Educators", "For Advocates", and an empty tab.

The Common Sense Media logo, which includes a green checkmark icon and the text "common sense media". To the right is a search bar with the placeholder text "Find movies, books, and more ...".

A row of five green buttons with white text: "Movies & TV", "Books", "Apps & Games", "Parents Need to Know" (highlighted), and "Latino".

Parents Need to Know

See advice by topic